

Counter Terror Training for Law Enforcement and Martial Arts Instructors

Martial Arts has to adopt to new realities of the day
Combating Terrorism is the new reality!

Special certification and ranking for completing the Martial Counter Terror program.

If someone or group entered a facility shooting or stabbing at individuals would you have a strategy to even attempt saving yourself or rescuing others?

Within ten feet a gun won't help much if victim has no unarmed skills against a lunging knife attack.

Combat Shooting & Apprehension-Israeli Style

CSA bridges the gap between unarmed combat and tactical shooting in life and death situations. The ability to integrate empty hand and shooting skills means the difference between winning and dying. CSA has created one of the most effective practical real programs that will enable you to dodge, strike, draw, shoot, disarm and win at arm's length while also fighting from great distances with alternative makeshift weapons.

Learn concealment and cover techniques including the use of bulletproof shield and Distraction Device Deployment
Learn to clear the room and respond as a team minimizing fatalities and injuries while protecting yourself legally
Learn the when, how and why to shoot and how to perform under extreme pressure
Learn to fire in motion using alternative weapons while multiple shooters are attacking in motion as well
Learn how to disarm and render the terrorist into a state of advanced unconsciousness
Learn third party protection in hostage situations, rescue and recovery

SPIRITUAL SPECIAL OPS: Rabbi Exercising Gun Rights to Promote 'House of Worship' Security (Guest in NY or via phone)

As if the clear interpretation of gun rights in America couldn't be more complex for citizens to debate, a new trend is now taking the issue inside the walls of churches and synagogues across the country, where more religious leaders are making the case to carry firearms—even during service.

Critics say it's a contradiction and a shame when men of God are promoting violence through the exercise of gun rights. But for those like Rabbi Gary Moskowitz (pictured) of the Tzedek Task Force on Counter Terrorism, it's the obligation of such leaders to protect their "flock" in a dangerous world that, unfortunately, can claim that its greatest present-day conflict has religious roots.

"The war in Israel and the recent terror attacks in Mumbai speaks volumes to Jews and civilized people everywhere," says Moskowitz, a former New York City police officer. "Make no mistake, synagogues and churches are vulnerable to the threat of Islamic Jihad and God would want us to defend ourselves."

Moskowitz is so certain of this threat, and his conviction and view regarding gun rights for citizens is so clear—particularly for rabbis and priests, as well as congregation members themselves—that he has developed a House of Worship Security Training Certification program, through which said religious leaders can literally gain security and first-responder skills.

So, honestly, how great is this terrorist threat to American synagogues and churches? Rabbi Moskowitz can explain from firsthand experience.

Why can't police forces protect these houses of worship? Moskowitz can provide exactly ten reasons why.

And, in the face of all this, how critical is the ongoing gun rights fight on Capitol Hill? On behalf of the Gun Owners of America (GOA), the Rabbi Moskowitz would be honored to be a guest on your show to get after the real heart of this issue.
